

TO MAKE REPORT AS TO ELECTION

STEPHENSON INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE READY TO FILE
ITS FINDINGS.

MAY GO TO THE SENATE

Rumored That Final Action on the Matter Has Not Been Decided Upon.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., Dec. 29.—That the final report of the committee on the primary campaign of 1908 and the subsequent election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson in 1909 by the legislature, will not be made before the latter part of next week, was the statement of Senator Paul Hastings of Mayville, over the long distance telephone this morning.

Senator Hastings also denied all responsibility for the story printed in Appleton yesterday, that the committee will go directly to the United States senate with the charge that "bribery and corruption came into play" in the election of Senator Stephenson.

The Appleton Crescent printed the following:

"It is reported from the most reliable political authority that the senate committee of the legislature which investigated the primary campaign of 1908 and the subsequent election of United States Senator Isaac Stephenson in 1909 by the legislature, will not be made before the latter part of next week, was the statement of Senator Paul Hastings of Mayville, over the long distance telephone this morning.

IS IT THE SAME OLD BUGABOO?

ENGLAND IS WEARY OF GARBLED NEWS

Misrepresentation Of December Elections May Lead To Establishment Of Non-Partisan Paper.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, Dec. 29.—There is much talk in England, as an outcome of the December election, of the necessity for a really non-partisan newspaper for people who want news rather than the garbled facts which the party organs are in the habit of serving out to their readers.

Such a thing as a politically impartial publication does not exist today in the British daily newspaper and hardly in the British magazine field. No violent was the newspapers during this election that it is complained it was impossible for anyone to find a political expert to tell, even from published figures, how the voting was really going.

An illustration, particularly stress is laid by the press critics upon the article which appeared on the morning of December 7, at which time the Liberal party, after running three or four parliamentary stunts behind the Conservatives during the earlier days of the election, had made up this difference and gained one seat over its rivals. With a net gain of one Liberal seat, the London newspapers headed their reports of the poll as follows:

Leader (Liberal)—Smashing Blow Against the Peers.
Mail (Conservative)—Net Result of "Three Days" Polling, the Capture of a Single Seat.
News (Liberal)—People Win Seven To One.
Express (Conservative)—Dead Heat in the Electoral Contest.

Chronicle (Liberal)—Magnificent Liberal Victory—Net Gain Of Six Seats.
Telegraph (Conservative)—Gains and Losses.

Post (Conservative)—A Close Fight.
Standard (Conservative)—Surprising Results—Conservative Gain At St. Helens.

And the articles over which the headlines were written was as misleading as the headlines themselves.

SOCIALISTIC CULT IN THE COLLEGES

SPokane NEWSBOY VERY AMBITIOUS

Arthur Prague Asks For Job in Navy Department As Preparation For U. S. Senatorship.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, Dec. 29.—To have his way to a seat in the United States Senate via a clerkship in the Navy Department is the unique plan revealed in a letter received by Secretary Meyer.

Arthur P. Prague of Spokane, Washington, is the correspondent whose optimistic view of the opportunities furnished by the government service surprised anything ever before brought to the attention of the government officials.

Prague's letter is written on a sheet announcing his candidacy for the state legislature of Washington, as the "Newsboy candidate." Accompanying the announcement is his picture, showing a tall, bony young man, with a great abundance of curly hair and a most expansive smile, holding a bundle of papers under his arm. A long list of names of persons said to be prominent citizens, who are "trustees" of Prague's candidacy, is appended.

The Spokane young man declares that he cares not what are the wages or the hours of the job which he wishes Secretary Meyer to give him; all he stipulates is that the position shall serve to blaze the way toward Capitol Hill and put him within grasp of a Senatorial job.

It was stated at Secretary Meyer's office that a reply would be sent Mr. Prague, expressing the regret of the Cabinet member that he had no position which might be considered preparatory to a Senatorial job.

FIGHTING DAILY NEAR CHIHUAHUA

MRS. MACLEAN WRITES OF THE SCENES AT THE REVOLUTION CENTER.

INSURGENTS WINNING FIGHT

Thus Far They Have Apparently the Best Of the Argument—Bandits Are Causing Much Trouble.

That the fighting in the Chihuahua Province, Mexico, is not all victorious for the government forces is evidenced by the following letter from Mrs. Robert MacLean, to her mother, Mrs. Thomas King of this city. Chihuahua is the real storm center of the fighting in Mexico and the scene of the fighting in which the government and insurgent forces are taking part. Thus far the city of Chihuahua, where Mrs. MacLean and her daughter live, has not been invaded by the bandits, but the government forces and their base of supplies in the region. Mrs. MacLean writes in a most interesting manner of scenes in and about Chihuahua and as she gives a clear view of the revolution that is obtaining in telegraphic dispatches, portions of her letter are printed below.

It is probable that Mrs. MacLean and her daughters will go to El Paso within a day or two, at least until the present troubles are over.

Chihuahua, about Dec. 21. "The fighting is only about thirty miles from us now and they bring down and wounded soldiers in here by the carload. We have no telegraphic or railroad communications either to the east or to the west of us at present.

"There is only the train to El Paso and they say we will not have that long as the revolutionists are coming in from the border and marring to gether north of here.

"The revolutionists are certainly getting the best of it too, as they are strong well-dressed men and the soldiers are poor half starved creatures with no strength to fight.

"Large numbers from both sides have deserted and have become bandits and they are the worst kind to contend with. The amount of stealing and looting that is going on is appalling.

"The government was three days trying to send a train out to the front, the train is still down for about twenty miles, but they could get no train men to take it.

"They offered $1,000 in gold to American engineers for one trip and $10 a day extra, but could not secure anyone at that price. Finally they compelled Mexican engineers and firemen with guns pointed at them, to take the train to its destination from since and it is reported that it has been derailed and over 200 soldiers killed, engineers and firemen shot, and many women and children killed by soldiers.

"We do not know whether this is the truth or not as the only news we receive is from those who are brave enough to drive out to the scene of battle and they have not had time enough to return as yet.

"Women and children down here go with the soldiers wherever they are sent, and do the cooking as they have no commissary department. "Seventy-two wounded soldiers were brought here yesterday in wagons and one hundred and seventy six trench coats were dug for dead soldiers. They say they are going to take Chihuahua as sure as fate and I believe it too, as there is an awful strong feeling against the government here. It is more serious than an outsider can imagine.

"We had a young man here yesterday who was formerly at Janesville with the Gazette. His name is James and he came to this country for his health. He is very strong looking now and it seemed good to see some one from the north."

OBITUARY.

Home Course In Tree Preservation

By JOHN DAVEY. Father of Tree Surgery.

V.—Suggestions on Tree Planting.

(Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.)

WE will give you a little more about planting. In illustration No. 9 you have what is a splendid arrangement for that purpose. The soil is shallow and the trees will become large. The Norway maple has been selected, and the double row is admirable when you consider the quality of the soil and the rather slow growing tendency of the tree. By the way, I am lecturing on trees from one end of the country to the other, and I find no tree better adapted to all kinds of soil and all kinds of climate (except the far south than the Norway maple). It can be "spaced" at about twenty feet apart. While, as I say, in this particular instance there is no great objection to having them so close, yet in ordinary good soil it would be a serious mistake, as the trees would grow one into the other and the beauty of the individual tree would be lost. Their feet is a good distance.

It will be noted also that in this case there is a wide lawn between the sidewalk and the street. In such cases usually a tree will do fairly well, but where the border is narrow under no consideration should the tree be planted there, but on the inside of the sidewalk, on the lawn, about three feet from the walk, as here seen. This gives the most magnificent results. In case the street should be asphalted there is still room for the roots to ramble and gather their food under the sidewalk, on the other hand, in the lawn, if in Philadelphia, for example, the planting had been on the lawn, as indicated, and the "tree butchers" all been hanged, that city at the least calculation, as before stated, would have been $15,000,000 ahead in real estate values. I am writing for the people, so that they will not be misled by unqualified persons who pose as "professionals" in planting and the care of trees.

"It has been the object of the average 'tree agent' to sell all he can without regard to whether it is right or wrong in planting. Whether it be the individual tree, as seen out in the open field, for example? And who is there that will not gaze in loving admiration on the two cut leaves, birch, as seen in illustration No. 10? In the first place, the too thick planting is a waste of money for the trees, and, second, when the branches interfere the beauty of each individual tree is destroyed. Third, too many trees destroy the green sward, and the grass, a good, heavy sod, should always predominate, I favor 'clumping' or 'grouping,' but it should usually be off to one side and should consist of a number of kinds, so as to produce a woodland effect. When ten years ago I published the crude old 'Tree Doctor' the 'tree agents' and 'tree butchers' gnashed their teeth. But the people are getting wise and in a few years will know how to plant and care for their own trees with just as much ease as the average man knows how to take care of his horse or cow.

If your land is heavy the elm or sycamore probably will grow the best for you. If sandy and dry use the maples, birch, linden and oaks, especially the pin oak.

Apple trees refuse to do anything in low, heavy clay land, but the pear does all right. Cherries, plums and peaches do well in light, dry soils, and all do well on clay if thoroughly underdrained and subsoiled.

SHARON BOY BUILT WIRELESS STATION

Track Message Being Sent To New Orleans From Through the Air and Had It Verified.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Sharon, Wis., Dec. 28.—Sharon is on the map as a wireless station, and Curtis Lester, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walcott has made it so. The young "Jack Hinson" has equipped a plant at the home of his grand parents that would do credit to a station much more pretentious. Nearly all the apparatus has been devised by the boy himself. The two masts for the aerial are fifty feet in height and about 150 feet apart, and with the interior equipment, it is possible for the operator to receive messages over the air route a distance of over 1,000 miles.

On the election night returns were received from New York, New Orleans, and on Nov. 7, a message was received which had been sent by "Hinson" station at New Orleans, to a development company 700 miles south in South America.

In order to satisfy himself that he was correct Lester wrote a letter to the station, and received the following:

"Dear Sir:—In answer to your letter of the 8th inst., I beg to say that we are the 'Hinson' station you hear. The high frequency spark you refer to is our 25 K. W. 500 cycle Henson set. Your first message is correct; in the second you have the word 'Pneumatic' wrong. It should be 'Pneumatic' instead. I am pleased that you get us so good, and find you are doing pretty well with the outfit you mention.

"Trusting that this will satisfy you, I remain Yours Truly, E. L. COMMAGER, Opr. C. United Fruit Co., Wireless Station, New Orleans, La."

Possibilities in Jimson Weed. The chemist who will extract the bleaching principle from the common Jimson weed and place it with a bunch of family and laundry soap has a fortune in store. It is a well-known fact that there is no better way of bleaching the family linen during washing than by putting a few leaves of Jimson into the boiler, but there is an objection to this practice, as a very unpleasant odor is the result. This can be removed, however, by placing the clothes in cold water and boiling them, or by repeated rinsing, but all this is troublesome, and therefore many who know the value of the leaves do not use them.—Eternal Progress.

HAPPILY MARRIED WEDNESDAY EVENING

Emma J. Hageburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hageburg, married to O. C. Mason of Albion, (Special to this Gazette.)

Edgerton, Dec. 29.—At the farm residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hageburg, west of Edgerton, Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, occurred the marriage of their daughter, Miss Emma J., to O. C. Mason of Albion. To the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Linnevald the couple took their places and Rev. J. Linnevald, pastor of the Norwegian Lutheran church of this place, read the appropriate ceremony. The festive occasion was witnessed by a large assembly of invited relatives and friends. After the ceremony and reception a bounteous wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Mason will take up their home on the Mason homestead in Albion township.

Personal.

Mrs. Herman Greenwood and son are here from Milwaukee to remain over New Years with relatives.

Clarence Johnson has accepted a clerkship at Loeblein & Co's grocery and will assume his new duties January 2.

Prof. and Mrs. E. L. Roethe have gone to Fond du Lac, Wis., to spend the Christmas and New Year holidays with relatives there.

Elmer Shaw has left on a business and pleasure trip to Kansas City and Oklahoma.

UNITED IN MARRIAGE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON

Miss Jane Irish of Clinton became the bride of Roy Tucker of Allen Grove.

(Special to this Gazette.)

Clinton, Dec. 29.—Yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Irish, north of town, occurred the marriage of Miss Jane Irish and Roy Tucker of Allen Grove. The young couple have a host of friends who wish them health, wealth, and happiness. They will make their home at Allen Grove where Mr. Tucker is employed as a butter-maker.

Personal Mention.

Ben Benson, who lives on one of H. O. Natus's farms, fell yesterday afternoon and badly sprained his right ankle.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Meridith came out from Milwaukee, Sunday, to spend Christmas with Mrs. Meridith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Drake.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Velsah and sons returned to their home in Chicago, Tuesday. They intended to leave the next night for a trip to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Stewart of Madison are visiting relatives here.

J. H. Shung is visiting his niece, Mrs. F. W. Herron. Mr. Shung has been taking treatment in Detroit for a disease which has troubled him for several weeks and reports that he is better than at any time since the trouble began, last February. He has been compelled to use crutches all this time.

Installation of the newly elected officers of the Masonic lodge took place Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Jerome T. Williger is very ill at her home on the corner of Main street and Milwaukee avenue.

Elmer G. Pense went to Milwaukee to spend Christmas and returned to his business Monday evening. Mrs. Pense will remain for a few days visiting friends.

Mrs. A. E. Fredendall left yesterday for Elgin to visit her sister.

The Misses Frances and Mary Wood, and were in town Tuesday.

Ed. Stewart came down from Madison to spend Christmas.

Mrs. Roscoe, mother of P. B. and C. M. Roscoe, who came here from her home at Richmond, Ill., with her husband to spend Christmas, was taken very sick and is confined to her bed.

Prof. S. P. Reese and family were sorely afflicted Christmas day and Monday, every member of the family being sick in bed and compelled to forego the pleasure of a sumptuous Christmas dinner.

I. W. Wheeler, the ice man, scraped the snow off the river yesterday preparatory to cutting his ice harvest. But he found the ice only about six inches thick.

The dance Tuesday evening at Amos hall was not as well attended as was expected. Dancing seems to be a lost art in Clinton. This town used to be noted for its dances a few years ago and drew crowds from the surrounding towns and one or more prominent clubs gave dances every week or two. Now, one or two dances a year will not draw a paying crowd.

Warned in a Dream.

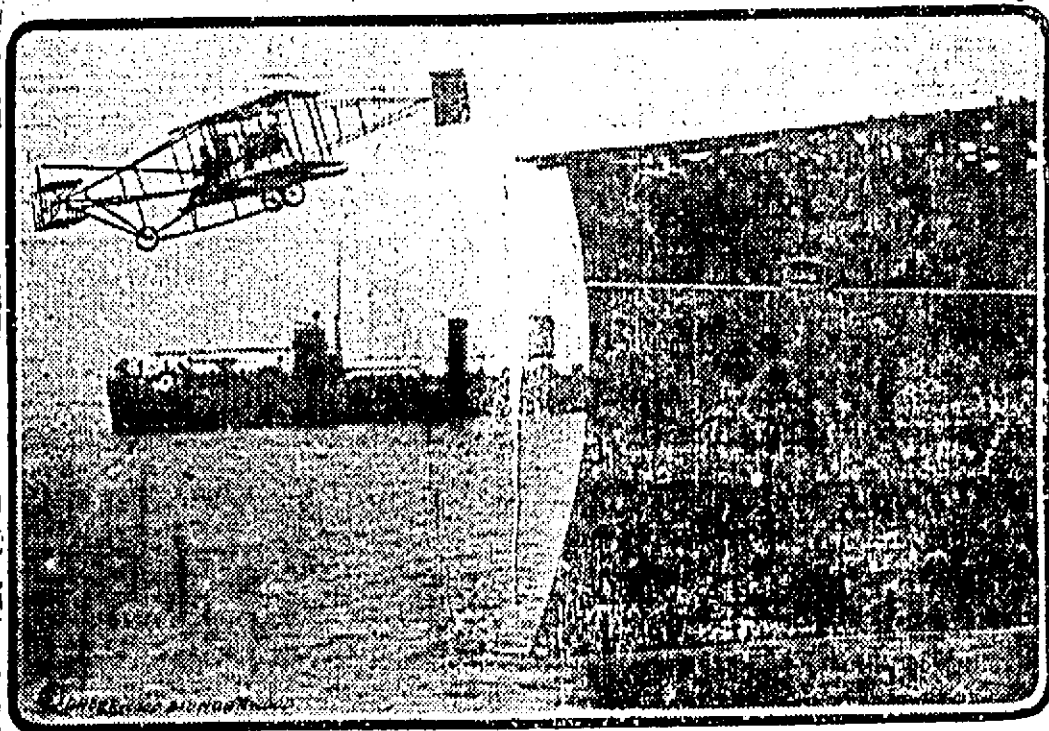

When Martin Michael went to his work in a lumber yard in Brooklyn, N. Y., the other morning, he told his fellow-workmen that he had had a curious dream and was afraid it foreboded trouble for him. He seemed worried over it, but the other men laughed and he did not speak of it again. About ten minutes before the time to quit work for the day, a sharp splinter of wood flew from a piece Michael was holding against a buzz-saw, and passed through his body. A doctor was hurriedly called, but Michael was beyond human aid.

Refrigeration in Wine Making.

From experiments made in France in the employment of artificial refrigeration in wine making, the following conclusions have been drawn: Grapes may be kept at a temperature of 29 degrees Fahrenheit for a year, but it is not advisable to keep them longer than a few months because of the inevitable softening of the seeds. In the clarification of liquors and their preparation for exportation to cold climates very good results are obtained by cooling to 29 degrees for 72 hours.

Life Not Worth Prolonging.

It is but little consolation to know that the rainy weather has lowered the death rate. The attitude of mind of the average man is that if this sort of thing goes on life will not be worth living, and that any extension of it can only be regarded as an additional grievance against the climate. It is said that the wet weather is extremely destructive to germs, and a good many people are disposed to envy the germs.—London Evening News.

DARING AVIATOR AS NAVAL SCOUT—Aviator Ely leaving the U. S. S. Birmingham on his five-mile trip to shore. Ely made the trip in a Curtiss biplane and is the first man ever to fly in a heavier-than-air machine from the deck of a ship to shore. The significance of the feat lies in the possibilities of the airplane as a naval scout during times of war in the future. Ely maintains it would have been entirely possible to have returned to the Birmingham after scouting the sea for miles around.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Cranberry Family

IT was moonlight and the great cranberry field stretching off into the darkness appeared like a dark sea dotted with diamonds. A night-bird flying overhead said to himself, "How pale and sickly the little cranberries look, if it was not for the moonlight, they would not sparkle."

Yes, the little cranberries—millions of them—did look very pale, a greenish white kind of color and their little green buds, on which they lay, seemed to make them all the more sickly-looking. And no one knew better than themselves that they were not well. Ever since they had first suddenly peeped into the world they had been frail and weak and the great cranberry bog was worried, and she wondered if it was the soil that made them so.

Poor cranberry bog—it was her first family and she did not know that cranberries are always frail when they first appeared. She had always heard that the children of other cranberry bogs were rosy-cheeked and healthy.

But there was something splendid in store for the little cranberry family, a something that later would make the good cranberry bog mother thrill with joy.

It was well along in the fall of the year at a time when good old Dr. Frost had left his home in the far away north to make his annual visit to all parts of the northern land. The wise man knew it was pretty near time for him to arrive in that part of the country where the little pale cranberries lived, but he said nothing to the bog-mother about it.

And then one night the air became suddenly sharp and clear and the little cranberries all over that great field suddenly awoke and they broke into songs of joy, for a new life seemed to have come to them. They felt strong and full of energy.

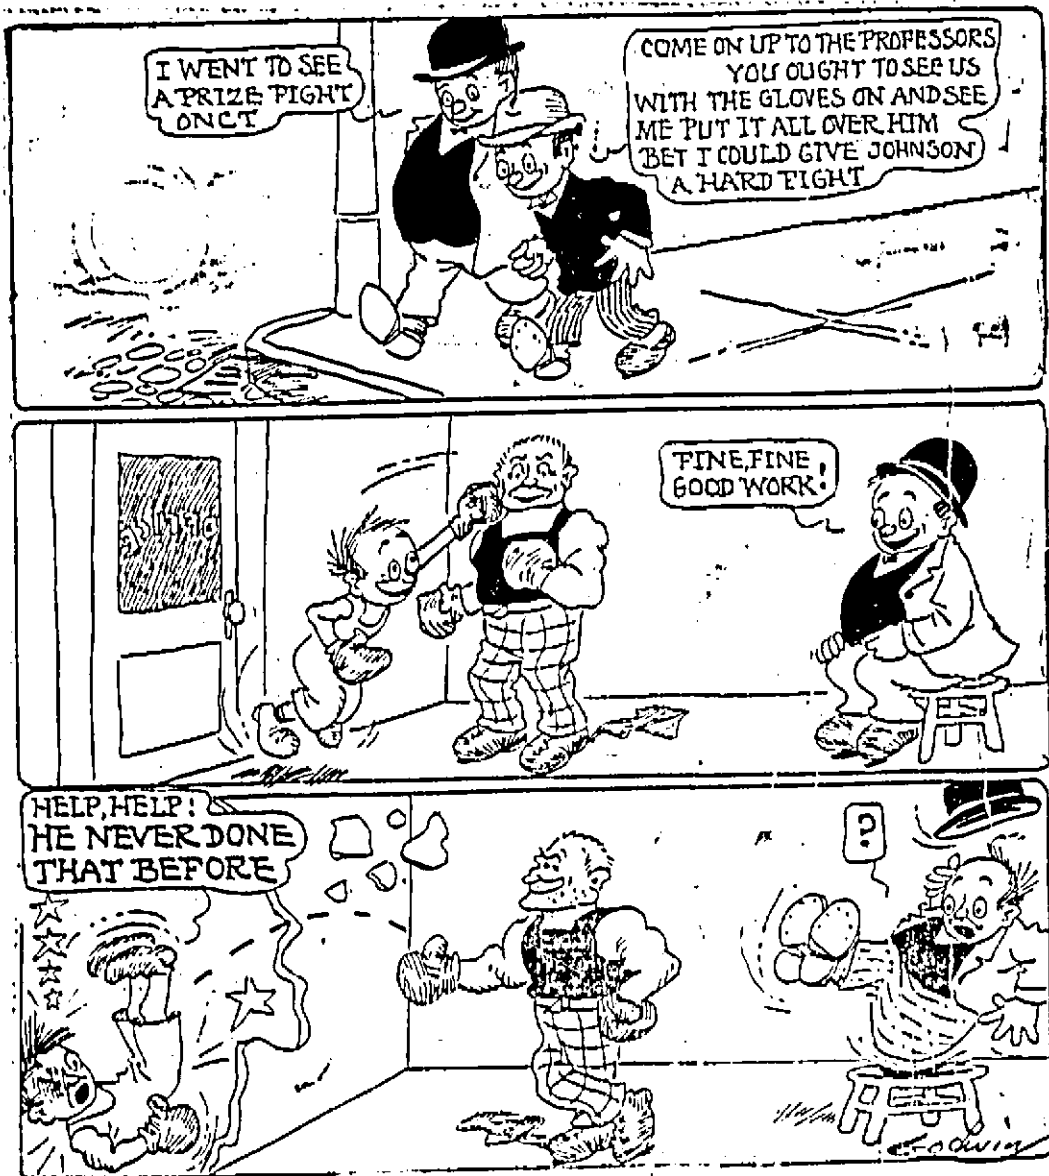

Dr. Frost had come while they slept.

Silently out of the north he floated on a gentle, frosty breeze, and as he neared the cranberry bog he paused, for he saw that all was not well.

"Here is a case for me," he said to the breeze, and he floated down and gently ran his magic fingers across the face of each sleeping cranberry. He worked with lightning speed and then—whiff!—he was away on the breeze again.

When morning came the birds flying overhead marvelled at the change in the bog below them, for the sea of green, instead of being dotted with millions of little green pale faces, was alive with ruddy, healthy faces of red and the cranberries were singing.

Mother cranberry-bog was the happiest mother in the world.

AT THE PLAY HOUSES

How would you feel if you had succeeded to a remarkable degree in accumulating the sum of $40,000 and then to have it suddenly snatched from you? That is the predicament that the character, Gustave Gebhart, finds himself in "A Poor Millionaire", which the Whimster Brothers Company will present at the Myers Theatre Monday night. But the clever manner in which he again gains his wealth and the way in which he unmasks the villain while the latter is in the depths of a most villainous machination that is appalling, is a great feature of this play. The play is a new story, in a new form, telling of incidents of every-day life in a convincing manner, absolutely true to life. "A Poor Millionaire" shows among other things, the hypocrisy of some of those who feign friendship and are cannot but wonder over the subject of whom to believe and whom not to believe. The play does not destroy that feeling of confidence which one should have in his friends, but it serves to teach you to be observing and penetrating in your estimate of character before relying upon those you meet without study. "A Poor Millionaire" is well told by this popular company of players, all five of the brothers being active in the action of the play. It is a play so thoroughly above the ordinary that you cannot well afford to miss it. The concert by Whimster Bros. concert orchestra starts at 7:45 sharp.

"Betty and the Baby", one of the funniest farces produced the last decade, will be the attraction at the Myers Theatre Saturday, December 31. The play is being produced under the direction of Henry H. Sayren, one of the new producers who have sprung up as a result of the fight between the theatrical syndicate. Word comes from Chicago that the production is very elaborate and the company very much above the average. There are many musical numbers in the piece, including some of the latest and greatest successes, "Betty and the Baby" is a laughing show, "for kids" so the advertising runs, and this includes everybody with a funbone from five to seventy-five years of age.

TEXAS RAISES POLO PONIES

Bring Good Prices in Parts of Country Where Sport Is Part of Daily Program.

Midland, Tex.—Large numbers of Texas ranch raised horses are being trained as polo ponies and sold for big prices in other parts of the United States and Europe where polo playing is freely indulged in. It is claimed that the best polo ponies in the world come from Texas.

The industry of breeding and training the animals upon ranches in this section has grown rapidly during the last few years. From 175 to 200 are sold and shipped from here each year. Fancy prices are obtained in most cases. Polo is played by a number of people of this section, the Midland Polo club having a membership of 17.

Polo ponies also are extensively raised and trained in the vicinity of San Antonio, Fort Davis, and other parts of the ranch territory of the state. There are a number of polo clubs in Texas and annual tournaments are given.

CARRIED STEPS WITH HER

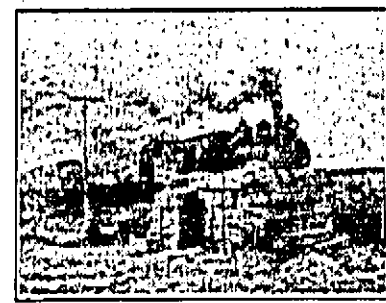

Stately Old Gotham Lady Preserves Dignity Despite Old-Fashioned Trolley Cars.

New York.—There is a certain stately old lady who doesn't let the high steps of the old-fashioned open trolley cars disturb her. When she boards a car in an outlying section, where the old-fashioned type prevails, the other passengers, noticed that she carried a light rattan and cane footstool, possibly six inches long.

Its use became clear as the old lady reached her destination. She signalled the conductor, and with a graceful smile, held out the stool. The man took the hint, and placed it so that she alighted with dignity. Then she thanked the conductor. What would happen if he should chance to have been surly or disobedient? Not clear, but probably very few car conductors would want to make such a dignified old lady do the high jump along with the other passengers.

MABEL MARRIED CHIEF WITNESS FOR THE PROSECUTION

Case Against Michael Griffin's Wayward Daughter Dropped With a Thud in Municipal Court Today.

Mabel Griffin, who, in company with Mrs. Lillian Harper and Mrs. Martha Tripka was arrested at 58 South River street Tuesday evening, with Frank H. Walker subpoenaed as a witness for the state against all three parties, sprung a march on the prosecution by marrying the man who was to be compelled to testify against her.

Walker furnished $300 bail and brought about her release from the county jail late yesterday afternoon. The pair took the first available transportation for Rockford and returned into the evening with a marriage certificate which Mabel gleefully exhibited in court this morning. It showed that the ceremony had been performed by Rev. Henry L. Martin, Methodist pastor of the Forest City. A husband may not be compelled to testify against his wife and so District Attorney J. L. Fisher, appreciating the fact that the jig was up, addressed Judge Pfitzler as follows: "May I please the court: Since this young lady (Mabel) is only eighteen years of age, I brought her here yesterday she has been married to the man who was in her company at the time of her arrest. I have examined the marriage certificate and find it in due form. In view of the fact that this man has been willing to take her as his lawfully wedded wife, I think the state should do what it can to help matters and give the young woman a chance to reform. I happen to know personally that the husband is capable of earning good wages and can provide her with a good home if she will do what is right by him. Walker is willing to pay the costs of this action and with this understanding I move it be dismissed." The court granted the motion.

Mr. Walker is said to be forty years of age. He raises tobacco and beats for one of the Metcalf brothers on Pleasant street. Mrs. Walker is well known in the community, having been before the court on several occasions for waywardness. About two months ago she went to Huron, S. D., and endeavored to compel a man named Childs to marry her.

The case against Mrs. Martha Tripka was also called this morning, but by consent of her attorney, Charles Reeder, and the district attorney, adjournment was taken until Jan. 30. Her mother, Mrs. Slevor, complained of having lost a pocketbook containing considerable money on her way to the court room.

There was a large gallery in the court room—"my wedding party," explained Mabel in one of her numerous "sides."

YEAR'S REVIEW TO BE FULL OF INTEREST

Annual Special Edition of the Gazette Will Be Published on Saturday of This Week.

The Chronological and Review number of the Gazette will be published Saturday next, December 31st, and will contain much of interest regarding the year's history of Janesville and this section of southern Wisconsin.

Work on the edition has been in progress the past six weeks and a great number of photographs have been taken for illustrative purposes. The entire work will be as complete as any single number the Gazette has ever issued; in fact, extra effort and expense have been used in preparation.

The exceptional demand of last year for extra copies, will be repeated, and already orders are coming in for reservations.

Those who desire the extra copies will do well to phone or leave orders at the office without further delay.

WISCONSIN SALE TO REACH INTO MILLIONS

Red Cross Seal Campaign Of Anti-Tuberculosis Society Was Magnificent Success.

Although the exact result will not be known for several weeks, it is estimated that 3,250,000 Red Cross seals were sold in Wisconsin this year, and that a large sum to the working fund of the state anti-tuberculosis society. Seals will be sold up to New Year's day in many cities, permission having been given to continue the campaign. To be considered in the award of prizes, returns must be in the hands of the anti-tuberculosis society in Milwaukee before January 11. Local campaign managers have been urgently requested to send results to the headquarters at once; in order that the awards may be made with the least possible delay. Unusual interest was manifested in the prize competitions this year and the results are being awaited anxiously.

"It is hoped that Wisconsin will maintain its position as the leader of all states for highest per capita sale by the magnificent sale of 1910," said Campaign Manager Werle. "This state won the honor in 1909 with a sale of 2,300,000, which has been increased by 550,000 this year. New York and New Jersey were Wisconsin's closest rivals last year and are again but on our trail. The citizens of Wisconsin have done themselves proud and deserve the honor again."

While the Red Cross seal is known as a Christmas greeting, it is a general holiday greeting and is desirable for use on mail matter and other articles until New Year's day. Local managers are making a final effort during this week to dispose of all seals remaining unsold, thus avoiding the necessity of making returns. If the returns are heavy, the estimate of sales will be materially reduced and the state's position will be insecure.

DETECTIVES RAID AN ITALIAN STORE

Capture 22 Men Believed to Be Guilty of Kidnapping.

VACHRIS QUESTIONS SUSPECTS

Prisoners Are Thought to Be Involved in Kidnapping of De Stefano and Longo Boys Who Were Recently Returned to Parents.

New York, Dec. 29.—In a raid on a little Italian grocery store at 212 Elizabeth street, the police captured twenty-two men. Two of them they believe were concerned in the kidnapping of Giuseppe De Stefano, of 216 Elizabeth street, last summer. Giuseppe, 27 years old, of 235 Elizabeth street, whom Giuseppe identified as the man who took him away, is locked up at headquarters, charged with kidnapping, and his brother, Giuseppe Crimi, is in the next cell.

Lieut. Vachris, the head of the Italian bureau, went to the grocery store with Detective Trabucco. The two bought a little cheese. The back room was full of men. Vachris set Trabucco at the rear door in the hallway of the tenement. Across the street is the house of Hook and Ladder Company 9. A fireman was standing in the door and Vachris took him by the arm.

"I'm Lieut. Vachris, of headquarters," he said, "and there's a gang in that store I don't want to get away. I have a man at the back door; you watch the front for me and don't let any one out until I get a couple of patrol wagons here." The fireman took him stand at the door.

No one tried to get out of either door until two patrol wagons came up with reserves from the Mulberry street station. A large crowd watched the loading of the wagons and followed them to headquarters.

For more than 3 hours the Italians were quizzed by Lieut. Vachris and Commissioner Flynn. Michael Rizzo and Giuseppe Longo, the two kidnapped boys, who were returned to their parents a few weeks ago, were brought over from Brooklyn. They knew none of the men. During the questioning one of the prisoners, Giuseppe Crimi, said that he had formerly lived at 216 Elizabeth street. That is the home of Giuseppe De Stefano, and Lieut. Vachris who worked on the case last summer, remembered it well.

Giuseppe, who is 6 years old, disappeared July 29. His parents reported his loss to the police, but denied having received any letters. A week later the boy was returned in a carriage. All that he would tell was that he had ridden in a carriage and on a boat that went to New York. His parents seemed to be satisfied with his return, and did not ask the police in their efforts to find out who had taken him. His father is well-to-do.

TAFTS PLAN CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. Taft to Celebrate Silver Anniversary at White House.

Washington, Dec. 29.—President and Mrs. Taft will celebrate their silver wedding anniversary June 19, and will celebrate it in the White House. They have decided that whatever their plans may be for and after that date, they will so arrange things as to be here in Washington, June 19, regardless of weather and other conditions.

It is said that the celebration of the silver wedding anniversary of the president will be made a notable affair. Washington society is already talking about it, and it is expected that foreign governments, in an informal way, will recognize the event.

HUGE RAILWAY TERMINAL

Permit Asked to Construct Immense
Building and Build Tunnel.

Montreal, Dec. 29.—An application has been made to the board of control by the Montreal Central Terminal company for leave to construct under its charter, a great central railway terminal here. The scheme involves a tunnel under the St. Lawrence river, which will be used by the New York Central and the Delaware and Hudson. It is said.

From the north and west the terminal would be used by the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk systems. The Canadian Pacific is not interested in the project. The company is capitalized at $30,000,000.

AIRSHIP FALLS; 2 KILLED

Aviator Laffort and Passenger
Killed in Flight in France.

When 60 Feet in the Air the Motor Refuses to Work and the Monoplane Fell to Earth.

Paris, Dec. 29.—A passenger-carrying monoplane, with Aviator Laffort and M. Paula, fell fifty feet shortly after leaving Issy on a round trip to Brussels, and both men were fatally injured, dying in a few minutes.

Laffort had set out to win the $30,000 prize offered by the Automobile Club of France for a round trip to the Belgian capital within thirty-six hours. The disaster took place immediately after the machine left the aerodrome at Issy and was caused by the motors going wrong. The machine, a big two-seater affair, was smashed to pieces.

Rescuers ran to the aid of the imprisoned men and lifted away the debris, expecting to find the men dead. Both were covered with blood and unconscious. A physician who examined them declared they would die, as they were suffering from bad cuts and internal injuries.

The two men died in a few minutes. Souvenir-hunters pounced upon the wreckage of the machine despite the efforts to protect it and carried away all the portable fixtures.

DUFFY KILLED IN PAPER MILL

Body Is Drawn Into Machine and Crushed to Pulp in Rolls.

Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 29.—John Duffy, 18, began work Tuesday in the Traders' Paper mill in East Lockport. Wednesday morning he was tending a machine, and the paper feeding between the collanders under the dryer broke. To fix the break, Duffy crawled under the machine. His right hand was caught between the rolls.

A shriek of pain startled his companions and they rushed to turn off the power, but before the ponderous rolls could be stopped, the youth was gradually drawn into the machine. His right hand passed in first, then his arm and finally his shoulders and chest, which were crushed to a jelly.

MAINE NOT WRECKED BY SPAIN

Story Printed States Vessel Was Destroyed by Internal Explosion.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 29.—The Commercial says it has information from the Lackawanna Steel company, that the battleship Maine was not blown up by Spain, but was destroyed by an internal explosion in its own ammunition magazine. No confirmation has come yet from the company as to this statement.

The story says that the fact has been known in Washington for several weeks. It says the finding of the turret of the ship in Havana harbor separate from the rest of the vessel proves an internal explosion.

GOTCH CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Zbysko, Polish Wrestler, and Champion Matched for Bout.

New York, Dec. 29.—Zbysko, the Polish wrestler, who defeated Dr. Holter several weeks ago at the Grand Central palace, and Frank Gotch were matched to wrestle, the date and place to be decided later. Gotch posted a forfeit of $500 with a Chicago paper several weeks ago, and wired J. H. Herman, manager of Zbysko, who is stopping in this city, to that effect.

Herman posted $1,000 with H. D. Cashman to bind the match and Gotch agreed to the terms. It is likely that the match will be held here. The men will wrestle for a purse of $20,000, winner to take all.

AGED WOMEN AT PARTY

Esther Davis Celebrates 117th
Birthday by Giving Party.

Five Members of Escort Committee
Over 100 Years Old—Party at Home of Daughters of Jacob.

New York, Dec. 29.—A rosy-cheeked old woman, Esther Davis, believed to have lived 117 years, had a birthday party at the home of the Daughters of Jacob, 301 East Broadway, where she has lived for the last seven years. From 4 o'clock in the afternoon until it was bed time for her at 7:30, she received her friends and participated in the gaiety of the occasion.

Born in the town of Yagostov, province of Sovalia, Russia, Mrs. Davis claims that she can remember riding her soap to Napoleon's retreating army, "and I was quite a big girl then," she says. She was brought to the home seven years ago by Mrs. Esther Phillips, and Mrs. Phillips, who is 89 years old, remembers Esther Davis when Mrs. Phillips was a little girl in Russia.

Those members of the home who formed the committee that escorted Esther Davis into the main hall for the party were: Mrs. Olga Eskner, 100 years old; Mrs. Rosalie Kalmanson, 103; Mrs. Mabel Diamond, 109; Mrs. Rachel Marcus, 104, and Mrs. Mollie Bernstein, 107 years old.

FIRE CAUSES EXPLOSION

Business Section of Dresden,
Canada, Partly Wiped Out.

Ex-Mayor Kicks Killed by Blast and Several Other Persons Suffer
Minor Injuries.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Dec. 29.—A large portion of the business section of Dresden, Canada, was wiped out by fire during the progress of which an explosion occurred, killing C. V. Kleis, ex-mayor, and seriously injuring several other persons. The fire started in Jeffery's millinery store and completely destroyed Edward Watson's grocery, Masonic hall, Robinson's millinery store, John Adkins billiard hall, and Robert Atkins dry goods store. The loss is placed at $100,000.

While the fire was in progress an explosion occurred in Atkins store, entirely blowing it out. C. V. Kleis was instantly killed and Rev. C. H. Long, a Methodist minister and Robert Atkins, Charles Atkins, Dr. McDonald and others suffered injuries, but will recover.

SICK GIRL LEAPS INTO WELL

Skull Broken by Fall, Giving Rise to Murder Theory.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 29.—Despondent, it is believed, because of ill health, Miss Lillie Hanson, 17 years old, of Oange City, Kan., committed suicide by leaping into a well. The body was recovered.

The girl's skull was crushed as it struck the wall of the well. This injury led to a suspicion that Miss Hanson had been murdered.

WOMAN DIES AT AGE OF 102

Mrs. Clarissa Perrin Dies in Home in Fredonia at Ripe Old Age.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Mrs. Clarissa Perrin died at her home in Fredonia, N. Y., at the advanced age of 102 years. She was born in Connecticut and had lived in Fredonia for the last forty years.

Mrs. Perrin never wore glasses and retained her mental faculty up to the time of her death. She had vivid recollection of President Madison and the war of 1812.

PRESIDENT SEEKS A TARIFF BOARD

Bill Urging Permanent Commission to Be Offered.

MEASURE OFFERS COMPROMISE

Representative Longworth Will Offer
Bill in House in January as Representative of President—
May Cause Lively Fight.

Washington, Dec. 29.—A bill providing for a permanent tariff commission will be introduced in the house in January by Representative Longworth of Ohio. The measure will represent a compromise, as it is to be made up of bills offered by Mr. Longworth, who is acting for the president in this matter, and Representative Goode of Iowa, and Senator Republican. As things now stand the administration expects that the Longworth bill will have the united support of the leaders of both factions of the party in the house and senate. The bill will be put forward with the argument that it is intended as an effort to remove the tariff from politics as far as possible. The Democrats, it is said, will fight the Longworth bill.

Friends of the administration believe that the consideration of the bill will bring the Republican factions in congress together for the first time in years. The bill has been drawn with great care. Concessions have been made to the LaFollette-Cummings wing, and regulars who have heretofore shown their teeth every time the tariff board was mentioned, have signified a purpose to support the measure. All signs point to a lively fight over the Longworth bill. If the measure fails, every effort will be made to secure another appropriation for the existing board through the medium of the sundry civil bill, which will be reported to the house some time in February.

MORE DISCUSSION OF BOLL WEEVIL

Mississippi Livestock and Dairy Association Is in Session At Starkville.

Starkville, Miss., Dec. 29.—The Mississippi Live Stock and Dairy Association met at the Agricultural and Mechanical College today and began its annual convention. The proceedings began this morning with an address by the president, Dr. Tait Butler, who was followed by H. E. Hildebrand, State Commissioner of Agriculture, and J. M. Taylor of Port Gibson. Commissioner Hildebrand spoke of the progress of the live stock industry in Mississippi. "Live Stock as a Means of Meeting the Boll Weevil" was the subject of Mr. Taylor's address. This afternoon the association discussed the raising and feeding of beef calves and the necessity of state control of animal diseases. Tomorrow the association will conclude its sessions.

His bride is athletic and has won several ribbons for her skill in riding and driving. She is also known as an expert swimmer.

NEW YEAR'S EVE IN GAY GOTHAM

All the Big Hotels and Restaurants
Are Making Extra Arrangements
For Celebration.

New York, Dec. 29.—All the big hotels and restaurants in the metropolis are making extra arrangements for the entertainment of their guests and patrons on New Year's Eve. At all the leading hostilities the demand for table reservations is reported to be greater than ever before, from which it would appear that the action of the police commissioners in withholding many all night liquor permits is not expected to place much of a damper on the festivities. Music will enter largely into the program this year at the Plaza, the Waldorf-Astoria, the Hotel Astor, the St. Regis, the Knickerbocker and other big hotels. Many novelties for the night are being prepared by the management of the new Rector's and the Ritz-Carlton, which have only recently been opened to the public.

BANKS NEEDED IN SOUTH AMERICA

Prof. Reinisch Of U. of W. Declares
That Shipping Interests Demand
Better Facilities.
(BY UNITED PRESS.)

Washington, December 29.—The crying need of American interests in South America is the establishment of American banks, according to Prof. Paul S. Reinisch, of the University of Wisconsin, who recently returned from the Pan-American Conference at Buenos Aires, Argentina.

"We have the business," said Prof. Reinisch, "and now we need banks to accommodate American firms doing business in South America. The banking methods prevailing in South American cities are extremely slow and antiquated. They would quickly be forced aside should an American bank enter into competition with them."

"At present, the only method of exchange is through London or other European financial centers, a most roundabout and inconvenient system for American shippers. The banking business in South America is practically entirely in the hands of foreigners. In Buenos Aires, for example, outside of the National Bank of Argentina, all the other banks are owned by Europeans. There are several British banks, an Italian bank, German banks, French banks, and so on."

Prof. Reinisch's views are shared by Secretary of the Treasury MacVough, who in his annual report submitted to Congress, urges legislation which will permit national banks in the United States to establish branches in foreign lands. This attitude is endorsed by officials of the state department.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS TOPIC OF CONFAB

Fifth Annual Meeting Of Intercollegiate Association Called To Order
In New York.

New York, Dec. 29.—Representatives of nearly 100 of the leading colleges and universities of the country filled the assembly room of the Hotel Astor this morning when Captain Palmer E. Pierce, U. S. A., called to order the fifth annual meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the United States. The roll call showed the attendance to be larger and of a more representative character than at any previous meeting of the organization. A number of prominent colleges of the West and South were represented for the first time.

In accordance with a policy adopted at the meeting last year the opening session of the meeting was given over to addresses by men of wide prominence. In addition to Captain Pierce, who made the opening address, the speakers and their subjects were as follows: Rev. Charles F. Aked, D. D., of New York, on "Athletics as a Function in National Life"; Prof. R. Tait McKenzie, of the University of Pennsylvania, on "A Chronicle of the Amateur Spirit"; and Prof. Arthur G. Smith, of the University of Iowa, on "Conference, Direction, and Control of Athletics in the Middle West." The real business of the meeting was taken up this afternoon and owing to the large number and importance of the subjects demanding attention it is probable that the session will be carried over tomorrow. Foremost on the agenda is the perennial question of football reform. While this subject does not loom up so largely on the program as last year, when the rules of the game were given a thorough overhauling, the matter will again be discussed with a view to bringing about the adoption of a still more perfect code. The charges that the new rules are not being strictly enforced by the officials selected, and that the students fail to adhere strictly to the letter of the present rules will be handled in a forceful manner. Other branches of college sport as well as football are slated for critical consideration. Summer baseball and the amateur law and the subject of track athletics, their proper control, uniform rules for participants and methods of preserving records made—will be discussed. Still another matter to be considered and acted upon is the proposal to change the constitution, so as to give representation on the executive committee to local leagues, such as that of the New England States, the Southern Intercollegiate, the Missouri Valley conference, the Ohio Valley and the Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia Leagues.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THAT man is truly great who can rule his mental kingdom, who at will can master his mood; who knows enough of mental chemistry to neutralize a fit of the blues, to antidote any evil poisonous thought with the opposite thought just as a chemist neutralizes an acid that is eating into the flesh by applying an alkaline antidote.

Orison Sweet Mardon.

And this kingdom over which we so strangely refuse to take the scepter is the kingdom of our thought.

How many of us can control our thoughts at will?

And yet to what one of us would not such a power be of incalculable value?

I found an ordinarily sensible friend of mine quite upset yesterday, and what do you think was the reason?

She had been looking for some time for a certain kind of goods she wanted for a suit, and not finding what she wanted, had finally taken something that "would have to do."

The day after the tailor had cut into this makeshift, she had seen just what she wanted and at such a much more reasonable price than she had paid for the other goods.

"It has made me fairly sick," she assured me, "in thinking that I might so easily have had just what I wanted and not paid near what I did for that horrid thing, either."

"It is a shame," agreed, "but as long as you can't change it, why think of the matter?"

"I just can't help it," she said, "I can't think of anything else."

Seems to me that a deplorable state of affairs to let a mistake, or rather an unfortunate happening, poison her mind and cloud her day, merely because she hadn't the ability to put the thought of it from her.

That's one form of the thought-vain regrets.

Worry is another. Suppose tomorrow's tasks are going to take every bit of your ability. Will it help you any to spend this evening in a fever of worry as to how you are going to accomplish them? You can't help thinking about it? No, upon you. That's the least of it.

True, this is not the easiest kingdom in the world to rule. Quite the reverse, but I do believe anyone can rule it, especially if he ascends the throne young enough.

If you deliberately set yourself to banish any thought which you know is harmful you will find your task growing easier each time you accomplish it.

But don't forget one thing. And that is that merely banishing a thought is not enough. You must add the positive to the negative. When you want to get rid of a train of thought don't just be satisfied by merely shutting it off the track, but be sure to put another in its place.

In other words, don't be satisfied with merely washing off the acid. Antidote it with the alkali.

Preparing and Cooking Oysters.

Oysters do not contain the nourishment that have been in this past led to suppose. They are easily digested and that, with the added variety they give to our diet is the chief reason they are so valued.

When oysters are come from the market they should be carefully looked over to remove broken shells. It is wise not to use the water in which they are received. Put the oysters into a colander and pour over them plenty of cold water. This process should always be followed before cooking.

Fried Oysters.—Select large, fat oysters, drain them and place them on a large board. Dry each oyster with a soft cloth; dust with salt and pepper. For each dozen oysters allow one egg beaten light and a tablespoonful of water added. Dip the oysters into fine breadcrumbs then into the egg, then back into the bread crumbs, being careful to keep the crumbs dry and the egg free from crumbs. When all are ready, have a kettle of lard and sput mized, heat the fat until a cube of bread browns in 45 seconds, when it will be sufficiently hot. Put five or six oysters in a frying basket and plunge them into the fat; as soon as they are a golden brown lift the basket, drain the oysters on brown paper and serve at once.

Oysters a la Thorndyke.—Clean and drain a pint of oysters. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the oysters and cook until plump. Then add the seasonings of a half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of nutmeg and cayenne, a fourth cup of cream, two egg yolks. When the egg is cooked serve on crackers.

In preparing scalloped oysters it is well to remember never to have more than two layers as the inside one will not be cooked, when the top and bottom layers are well done.

To prepare a block of ice to serve oysters, use a square or oblong of clear ice and with hot flatirons melt a cavity large enough to hold the oysters. Pour the water from the cavity as it is formed.

BEING YOUR OWN ANCESTOR.

"My child in the day of resurrection they will ask you what YOU have done in the world, and but from whom you are descended," runs the old Persian proverb.

And that's just it. We must amount to something on our own account if we would receive the rewards of merit.

There are a lot of who are exceedingly proud of their ancestry. We either trace it back through centuries of proud record in the old world, or to descent from some of the hardy first settlers in this. But what does it benefit us if our ancestors came over in the Mayflower, if they were among the early Dutch of New Amsterdam, the English cavaliers of Virginia and other southern states, the early makers of Pennsylvania and New Jersey, if we do not do something on our own account, if we do not make our own personal standing of real worth?

It is a fine thing to know that the blood of the forefathers flows through our veins, but what good does it do us if we do not do something on our own account, if we do not make our own personal standing of real worth?

sweeping train. Short dresses are suitable enough for young girls, but not all women are young girls.

Ratteen, or half-striped velvet, is very much in evidence for dresses out in one piece. Straight, short, and exceedingly simple are these garments. The cut must be perfect, however, and the elegance traceable to color and just a touch of trimming. All accessories of these dresses are chosen in a contrasting color. With a brown ratteen costume, for instance, the gloves, handkerchiefs, stockings and cloth tops of the shoes might be green; with a gray suit, red is very popular.

Street costumes may be artificially simple in line and ornamentation, but in evening gown fashion has gone to the other extreme. Novels were more colorful than at present. Silks, color, scheme and trimming, but the overwhelming majority of these gowns are extremely beautiful. While subscribing in a general way to the accepted silhouette, they blur the outlines with shimmering veiling and graceful folds until all hardness disappears and what was straight in the street gown seems full of supple curves, even though it keeps the prescribed silhouette.

Materials of all sorts of wear are handsome enough and varied enough this winter, but it is when one comes to evening dress that one finds bewildering beauty and variety. No brocade too glowing and gorgeous for such use, no jeweled trimming too barbaric, no tulle too diaphanous, no color scheme too delicately pottle or too daring. The amount of gold and silver entering into the fashionable materials and trimmings has much to do with the effect of richness and extravagance given by the prevailing models for evening and all the beaded and bugled and jeweled embroidery added to the sumptuousness of evening to the toilet.

For all this gorgeousness is not absolutely necessary to the achieving of evening toilet smartness.

It is worthy of record that some of the most delightful frocks worn at the open and some of the fashionable evening functions had an air of extreme simplicity and yet a touch of the gorgeous. This effect of apparent simplicity is not easily produced and requires greater genius on the part of the maker than the most elaborate and gorgeous costume.

White and gold brocades make some of the most striking evening gowns, with handsome gold lace, embroidery of pearl and gold, etc., for trimming. Picturesque models of mediaeval air are made up with narrow tunic of such white and gold or white and silver brocade falling straight in front and back, but open all the way up the sides over simple girdled robes of chiffon or tulle. Jeweled chains or cords of gold or silver at the sides hold back and front in place and usually some heavy metallic or jeweled brocade borders the tulle.

The chemise tulle of tulle or net, finely and exquisitely embroidered in bugles and beads, and falling over a clinging robe of satin, is a great favorite, and the transparent tulle is used in every possible form. One attractive version of it has a surplice corsage of chiffon, the left side folded vertically and embroidered around the decollete and bordered by a narrow line of dark tulle. Below the girdle the tulle is rather short at the left side and slopes sharply across the front almost to the skirt bottom on the right side. It is edged with fur and above the fur is a deep band of delicate embroidery.

In other models the tulle appears in a short waisted bodice of V shaped decollete and below the girdle the two sides cross slightly near the top, but soon divide to slope gently back, ward and be caught in the middle back by an ornament or bow. In the French frocks the V neck has the precedence and the decollete is rather unappealingly low, the back being uncovered quite to the shortened waist line. Less extreme shortening is of ten found, though some of the round necks are about as low as decency permits.

As to sleeves, the more conservative models usually have a little short loose sleeve, but the ultra smart frock is likely to depend upon shoulder straps or chains of some sort and a little fold of tulle by way of apology for sleeves.

In most cases the Empire lines are made conspicuous by the designers of the evening gown and almost all of the evening lines are shortened a trifle. If waist lines are short, there are, however, numerous exceptions to this rule and one often sees picture gowns of the distinctly long bodice and full skirt type.

One of the garments which the one-piece dress has greatly revived is the separate coat. Nowadays a woman has so many little house and street dresses that a long separate coat is dresses that necessity. For daily wear these coats are most serviceable when made of tweed or heavy shorn serge, but for dress wear broadcloth or velvet for the correct textures. The vogue shops are showing many elegant coats beautifully braided for afternoon or informal evening wear. They are fitting accompaniments to lovely gowns and help complete the toilet.

Papery-covered hats, the tapestry in bold patterns of soft old tulle on a light ground stretched tightly over the frame, come in light picture shapes and close mushroom forms. They are untrammelled.

White tulle and also veiled and Persian styles are shown in many new models and some of the high-class trade is taking waists made up over things the same color as the outfit, both matching the color of the coat and skirt.

For the holiday dances, the college girl needs pretty, simple evening frocks, and we suggest today a charming model in pink messaline.

Belts of real Valenciennes trim skirt at intervals below hips bands of the silk, put on as indicated. A double frill of lace finishes the neck of the otherwise plain bodice, made kimono style, and the high-shaped girdle is of the material.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN

Food Specialist

THRIVES ON ONE MEAL A DAY.

"I can do twice as much work now and I expect to live twenty years longer," says a man, past sixty, who has materially changed his diet in the past two years, living now on one meal a day, and always the same meal, and drinking only in the morning. Sudden change in diet is always inadvisable and it is not always best for an old person to abandon long established habits, even though they may be injurious, but there are few who have followed the conventional habits of eating who may not improve health and working capacity by modifying the diet.

How Long Are You Going to Continue Coughing and Weakening Your System?

No Need of It, When You Can Make a Pint of Laxative Curative Cough Syrup Cheaply.

The only way to cure a chronic or acute cough on the lungs, sore throat, bronchitis, etc., is to get a medicine which will at once relieve the fever and congestion responsible for the cough (which is only a symptom of inflammation) and then proceed to restore the blood and membranes to a healthy state. A fine laxative, curative cough syrup, which will delight any one who tries it, can be made at home cheaply. It beats ordinary cough syrups a hundred to one, because it does not sicken or constipate.

Obtain of your druggist, or have him order from the wholesaler, 215, Andrew Avenue, New York City. Empty it into a pint bottle. Then take a spoon with a half pint of granulated sugar, and a half pint of boiling water, put on fire and let it come to a boil. Then cool and fill up pint bottle and you will agree with the writer that it makes the finest, quickest, active cough syrup you have ever tried. And it not only relieves, but cures.

The dose is a teaspoonful 8 to 10 times daily, or as required. Give children less according to age.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL WOMAN IN WASHINGTON.

Mrs. Timothy T. Ansberry, wife of the congressman from Ohio.

Washington, D. C.—To be designated as the most beautiful and best dressed woman in the congressional set is an honor worth striving for. Mrs. Timothy T. Ansberry, wife of Congressman Ansberry of Ohio, has been unanimously, though not officially, elected to this post for the 1910-11 social season.

MET WITH TROUBLE IN SALE OF BUTTER

Monroe Cheese Dealers Found Difficulty in Disposing of Whey Butter On Chicago Market.

Monroe, Wis., Dec. 29.—Cheese dealers in this locality are experiencing considerable trouble in disposing of the whey butter on account of the restrictions placed upon the product by the government pure food law. Shipments sent from here to Chicago have in several instances been seized and the shippers obliged to pay the adulterated buttermaker's license and fined for every pound of seized butter. Whey butter is placed in the same class with creamery and table butter and subject to the same tests. The placing of the product under the ban makes it dangerous for cheese dealers to handle it.

John H. Elmer & Son sent ten tubs of whey butter from here to H. L. Crown & Co., Chicago. Five tubs were condemned and the other five passed the requirements. The firm was compelled to pay adulterated buttermaker's license seven months, amounting to $380, and fined ten cents a pound on 297 pounds. Elmer & Son are making claim to the goods and hope to get a new ruling on the ground that they are not makers of adulterated butter and the product was never sold or placed on the market for table butter or anything but whey butter and that it is used for cooking purposes exclusively. An appeal was made to the state dairy and food department but it was found whey butter is placed in the same class with dairy and creamery butter and that no distinction can be made until the law is changed. The matter will be brought to the attention of Senator La Follette and Congressman H. A. Cooper.

Miss Minnie Moldenhauer and Mr. Edward Haberman, both prominent and well known young people of Juda, were married yesterday at high noon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Moldenhauer. They have gone to Nebraska on a honeymoon and upon their return will begin housekeeping on a farm in Jefferson, formerly known as the Franklin Mitchell place.

John Ferris, several years ago an instructor in the high school here, and now in business at Pittsburg, Pa., is expected here Monday for a visit to Archie Nance and his friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Becker, residing in the Third ward, are the parents of a little son.

NEWS OF INTEREST AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Various Innovations Have Been Instituted For Convenience Of City Library Patrons.

Although the public library is a very attractive place, it has not been as popular with the citizens as it should be. Recently a number of innovations have been instituted by the librarians who are starting a campaign to secure a greater use of the library by the reading public. On small bookshelves found at the library's desk is an explanation of the Dewey decimal system of cataloging which is in vogue at the library and with which many people are unfamiliar. By this system all the books are classified into ten main classes with various subdivisions under each class thus keeping all the books on the same subject together.

In an effort to secure greater use of the library on the part of the mon of the city, book-makers have been prepared with a list of books which are especially interesting to this class of readers.

Among them are found: Evans, A. Sallor's Log; Gordon's, Reminiscences of the Civil War; Wellman, The Art of Cross Examination; Roosevelt and Grinnell, Hunting in Many Lands; and Wyckoff, The Workers: The West. Another convenience which has been added is a collection of time tables of all the leading railroads of the country which are to be found on the desk and may be used in the library.

Some people are not aware that the library is open during the noon hour.

The library hours are 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily with the exception of Sunday. The library will be closed next Monday in observance of New Year's Day.

GREEN & SON LOST A VALUABLE HORSE

Animal Ran Into Side Of Building and Broke Shoulder—Had To Be Shot.

A sorrel horse attached to the delivery vehicle of the F. H. Green & Son feed concern, ran away yesterday afternoon, and in attempting to turn into the boarding stable of W. H. Holt on East Milwaukee street, struck the stone sill of one of the windows and broke its right shoulder. The animal was standing in front of a residence on Shulch street and became frightened at a bobbed drawn by a pony on which some children were riding. It was found necessary to shoot the horse. The owners held it at a high value.

CHAUTAUQUA LECTURER DEAD AT MILTON HOME

Prof. Edwin B. Smith, Noted Scientific Lecturer Passed Away at his Home in Milton.

[Special to this Gazette.]
Milton, Dec. 29.—Prof. Edwin B. Smith, who was taken with acute pneumonia on his return from the east Friday night died last evening. The deceased was over seventy years of age and since early manhood had visited many cities and towns all over the union delivering illustrated scientific lectures on the telescope and microscope. During the past five years he filled many Chautauqua engagements in the east, west and south. Many years ago he lost his wife and only child and for several years past had made this place his home when he was not making engagements. He had no relatives in this state and the funeral arrangements have not been made as yet.

Carl W. Crumb and wife returned from Jackson Center, Ohio, yesterday. Grant W. Davis and wife of Adams Center, N. Y., are visiting Milton relatives.

Russia's Financial Situation.

A pamphlet published in England "for distribution among people who may be asked to give financial aid to Russia by purchasing the state bonds of that country," says: "The financial condition of the empire is abnormal, according to the statement of Tcherevansky of the imperial finance commission. Exports are continually falling off and imports increasing. Never since the famine year—1892—has the breadstuff report been so poor. The hope of the empire lies in taxation, and it is a grave question whether this will be adequate to meet the nation's obligations."

The Thrifty Chinese.

With their wonted acute perception of the possibilities of things, the Chinese have taken advantage of the anti-mosquito campaign in the French concession to enshrine themselves, says the St. Louis Weekly News. One of the methods adopted to destroy the mosquito nuisance is to pour kerosene on the waters of the various creeks and pools and as a consequence most of them now carry a surface covering of oil. The Chinese, who do not view the work in the same light as the foreigners, have recently commenced skimming the creeks of the floating oil and using it for their own purposes.

Meat Nation of Jap Soldiers.

Dr. James Critchton Browne, who is the real authority behind most wireless and oracles on "feeding," says: "The meat ration of the Japs in Manchuria was the largest ever served in any army."

PLEASANT SOCIAL EVENT AT BROOKLYN

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert C. Smith Were Unexpected Guests at Delightful Occasion Tuesday Eve.

Brooklyn, Dec. 29.—One of the most pleasant social occasions of the half-year season occurred Tuesday evening when about thirty friends with well filled lunch baskets surprised Mr. and Mrs. Delbert C. Smith at their country home. Although much surprised Mr. and Mrs. Smith helped to entertain their friends in a most delightful manner. Many varied amusements passed the hours away all too soon. The good nights were said and the party was over as abruptly as it was begun; but Mr. and Mrs. Smith, as well as their guests, will long remember the evening as one most pleasantly spent.

Personal.

A baby boy was born Tuesday, Dec. 27, to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Yarwood. Harry Gould who has been visiting his brother, Clarence Gould, west of town, returned to his home in Lynn Grove, Iowa, Wednesday.

Miss Merle Piller was in Janesville Wednesday.

Floyd S. Main was an Evansville visitor Wednesday.

Carl Penn of Lake Mills, has been visiting his friend, Golden White, for a few days.

Alfred White, West Allis, is a guest at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. White.

Mr. and Mrs. August W. Artzok of Evansville have moved into the house owned by Mrs. Truett. Mr. Artzok will run a blacksmith shop here.

The ice harvest has begun and the Creamery ice house is being filled from the pond on Peter Mortenson's farm.

Ed. Richards had a carload of corn shipped here, from Iowa, recently.

Miss Edith Coughlin and little brother, Douglas of Palmyra, are visiting their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Smith.

Miss Mary Kellorah, who has been visiting her cousin, Miss Sadie Kellorah, returned to her home in Oregon yesterday.

Paris Winestops.

There are in Paris over 12,000 winestops and 500 popular bars, and the number is increasing every day. In the populous quarters of the city there is hardly a winestop in which you will not find one or more gambling apparatuses. An estimate which is far below the reality places the number of automatic machines of this kind in the Paris bars and winestops at 2,500, and their daily takings at three dollars each. That represents a sum of $7,500,000 a year. What is worse still, probably an equal amount in counters is rushed for needless drinks, so that those who participate in this unprofitable game are reduced to two unattractive alternatives—to lose their money or be poisoned.

Birth of West Virginia.
The act approving the admission of the state of West Virginia as the thirty-fifth state, to the union, passed congress December 31, 1862, to take effect June 20, 1863. The peculiar shape of the state of Virginia made many counties, on its western side, border on the northern states of Ohio and Pennsylvania, and in those counties sentiment, at the beginning of the civil war was strongly northern, which led to frequent meetings of their inhabitants and the final creation out of them of the state of West Virginia.

The SKY-MAN

HENRY KETCHELL WEBSTER

"All over this most deserted patch of it."

There was another silence. "Then she said: 'And what a contempt you must have for us—for us, poor wingless creatures, who cannot cross a little fissure in a rock or a bit of open water without such tolls—labor, yes, that must be the feeling—contempt; it could hardly be pity.'"

"If that's true," he rejoined quickly, "it's only poetic justice. I've only achieved toward the world the feeling which the world held for me."

The words were spoken harshly, abruptly, as if his memory had just tasted something intolerably bitter.

"At Least You Have a Magnificent Revenge."

The manner of the words, no less than the sense of them startled her, and she checked a movement to turn and look into his face. Instead, she tried to recall it as it had looked when she had first stood confronting him, before the twilight had faded.

It was a strange face, as she remembered it, but this, she reflected, was probably due to the incongruous effect of his deeply tanned skin with this very light sun-bleached hair. A sensitive face, finely chiseled, almost beautiful—and young, but with an inexplicable stamp of premature age upon it. It had not struck her at all as a tragic face. And yet the meaning of those last words of his, uttered as they were, had been tragic enough.

"At least you have a magnificent revenge," was all she said. And then there was another silence. She herself was trying to think of something to say, for she realized that his conversation had been involuntary, and that the silence must be distressing him.

But it was he himself who broke the silence with a natural, matter-of-fact question. "You say a searching party has set out from the yacht! Have they been long ashore?"

"They set out only a little after sunrise. We came into the bay with the last of yesterday's twilight, and the sight of those huts, at the edge of the shore," her voice faltered a little, "nearly made us hope that the impossible might prove true. We fired our signal cannon two or three times and then sent up some rockets, without getting any answer. It was too late to go ashore in the dark; so we had to wait a few hours for another sunrise. The few of us who were left on the yacht expected them back today before dark fell. But I suppose there's nothing to worry about in their not coming. They went equipped to pass a night ashore, if necessary. You don't advise me to begin worrying about them, do you?"

He did not answer her question. He was recalling something which his amazing meeting with the girl out here on the ice-does had, for a little while, put quite out of his mind—the weird, silent tragedy he had seen enacted a few hours before upon the glacier behind the headland. The victim, the man in the leather coat, must have been one of the party from the yacht; but it was impossible that the little band of his murderers could be. No one freshly landed from the yacht would have been dressed as they were, or would have been armed with darts.

With no better look at them than had been possible to him as he hung above their heads, he had been convinced that they were white; certainly, the leather-coated man had been talking to them, freely enough, in English. And yet, if white, they must have been refugees—survivors, if not of Captain Filding's ill-fated expedition, then of some other, tragic, unreported ship wreck.

But if they were white men—refugees, why had they fled from their hut at sight of the yacht which came bringing a rescue? Why had they driven that one luckless member of the rescuing party who fell in with them, into that carefully prepared ambush, and then murdered him, silent? Even Eskimos would not have done a thing like that.

His long silence had alarmed the girl, and presently, perceiving that this was so, he drew himself up with an affected start. "I beg your pardon. I drifted off, thinking of something else. Living in the sky doesn't seem conducive to good manners. No, I don't believe there is anything to worry about. Any way, as soon as light comes back, which won't be long now, I can set at rest any fears you may have. I'll go into that Polar party, and I'll search the land, too—for anything else that may be there. And then I'll bring you word."

"You are very good," she said with a little hesitation, "but I can't let you—"

He interrupted her with a laugh. "It's nothing difficult that I am proposing to do for you, you know."

"That's true, I had forgotten your wings. The rocks, the ice, the steep places, that mean so tragically much to them, are nothing at all to you. But what are you doing now? Even you can't find them in the dark?"

He had already begun untrapping the bundle he had made of his wings, and seemed to be preparing for immediate flight. That was what caused her question.

"No," he said; "I shall wait for sunrise."

"But why not here, on the yacht? We can give you a comfortable bed there; better, certainly, than that sleeping bag of yours."

"I am afraid," he said, "that what you call a comfortable bed in a yacht's cabin would be the surest instrument that could be found for keeping me awake all night. No, I shall find a sheltered hollow up at the top of that headland yonder, where I shall sleep deeply enough, you may be sure."

She watched him, silently, while he slipped the steel-jointed rods into place, drew the canvas bow strings taut, until they sang—until the fabric of his planes shimmered in the starlight—quivered, as if they were instinct with a life of their own.

A sense of the unreality of it all came welling up strongly within her, and a touch of an almost forgotten fear of him.

"Good night," she said, holding out her hand—"goodbye."

"Till morning," he answered.

A little breeze came blowing across the ice just then. He dropped her hand quickly, slipped his arms into their places in the frame, mounted the ledge of ice, and then, with a short run, sprang forward into the breeze.

She saw his planes bend a little, undulate, rather, with a sort of scintillating motion, as he flew forward, not far above the level of her head. He dipped down again as soon as he had open water beneath him, and almost skimmed the surface of it. Then, gathering speed, he began mounting.

She felt curiously alone now that he was gone; and a little frightened, like a child just waking out of a dream. And she blew a small silver whistle that hung about her neck, for a signal to the men on the yacht to send a boat for her.

Then, while she waited, she dropped down rather limply on her pile of bear-skins. Her hand found something hard that had not been there before, and taking it up she found that it was a curious blunt stick of wood, rudely whittled, and about ten inches long. It must have fallen from his belt while he sat there talking to her. She wondered what he used it for.

CHAPTER III.

The Murderers.

Two men clad in bear-skins were shuffling rapidly along across the glacier.

glacier. Dawn was already flooding the arctic sky with its amazing riot of color—rose, green-gold, violet, and the ice beneath their feet was rose color with misty blue shadows in it.

The foremost of the two wayfarers was a man of gigantic stature, six and a half feet tall and of enormous girth of chest; yet, somehow, despite his size and the ungainly clothes he wore, he contrived to preserve an air almost of lightness; of lean, compact athleticism, certainly. A stranger, meeting him anywhere and contemplating his formidable proportions, and then looking up past his great, blunt jaw into his cold, light blue, chlorotic eyes, would be likely to shiver a little and then get out of his way as soon as possible.

He was walking steadily, glancing neither to the right nor the left. Even over the treacherous, summer-glazed surface of the glacier, his great stride carried him along at a pace which his companion found it difficult to keep up with. Besides, this companion made his task the harder by allowing his eyes to wander from the track they were following, and casting little fursive glances at the man beside him. In any other company he would have been a rather striking figure himself, well above middle height, powerfully made, and with a face that had lines of experience and determination engraved in it. But the comparison dwarfed him.

He seemed to be trying to make up his mind to speak, and still to find this a difficult thing to do.

At last, with a deprecating cough, he began:

"What I can't see is, Rosecoe, what you did it for. It was all right to do it if you were figuring out any gain from it. We'll all agree to that. Anything for our common good, that's our motto. But where's the gain in killing just one poor fellow out of a party of 30? He seemed a good kind of chap, too, and friendly spoken. We didn't serve you like that, when you came aboard the Walrus at Cape Nome."

"It would have cost you four men to do it, Planck, and you were short-handed as it was."

"That wasn't why we didn't do it. You was a stranger, and you was in a bad way. There was a mob of men that wanted you mighty bad, and we gave you shelter and carried you off and made you a regular shark's member of the crew. Of course if we had any reason to act contrary, we'd have done so. And that's why it seemed to us—to me, I would say, that you probably had some reason in this case, here. And, well—we'd like to know what it is."

But the man he had addressed as "Rosecoe" strode on with unabated pace, as if he had not heard. For any attention he paid to his questioner he might have been alone in that expanse of ice and sky.

Planck accepted the silent rebuff as if it had been only what he had expected, but he sighed regretfully. He had once known, and it was only four years ago, that same swaggering trick of contemptuous authority himself.

He had been master, the most tyrannical sort of master, some say, to be found anywhere in the world; the captain of an American whaler. And this very man, at whose heels he was scrambling along over the ice, had been one of his crew; had never approached the quarter-deck where he reigned supreme, without an apologetic hand at his forehead, and had always passed to the leeward side of him up on the deck.

But the Walrus had been destined never to see port again. She lingered too long off the whaling grounds to get back through Behring strait that fall; and failed in the attempt to make McKenzia bay, where other whalers in similar plight put in for the winter. Instead of this friendly harbor, who was caught in the pack and carried, relentlessly, north and westward. The milling pressure of great masses of ice crushed in her stout hull, so that the open water they had been hoping for, became, at once, their deadliest peril. The moment the ice broke away, she would go to the bottom like a plummet.

But still the slow, irresistible drift of the ice-pack carried them north and west into a latitude and longitude which, so far as they knew, no human travelers had ever crossed before.

And then in the depth of the arctic night, bereft of hope, and half-mad with cold, they found a land that never had been charted, and most marvelous of all, a human welcome. For here on the shore were Captain Filding and the two other survivors of his ill-fated expedition.

The fate of the explorer's ship had been, it seemed, precisely that of the Walrus. She had been caught in the pack, crushed in it and carried against this coast. Before the coming of spring, and with it the breaking of the ice, Filding and his men had been able to carry their stores ashore, and of these, the greater part still remained.

Of the Walrus people, in all, there were 11, and these, with the three original castaways, settled down to the prospect of an indefinite number of years upon that nameless coast. "We can live like Christians," Captain Filding had said, "and we can always hope."

His superior knowledge of arctic conditions made him, rather than Captain Planck, naturally commander of the little company. He established the regimen of their life, doled out the store from day to day, and, as heat he could, through that long winter night, provided entertainment for the forlorn little group. He told them of his explorations on the coast, of the lay of the land, of what they might hope to see when the sun should come back to them, marking the beginning of another long arctic day.

Fresh Air in Winter

In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly.

If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

PERFECTION

SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic flame appender, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font.

The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Drawings and Paintings.

The first sketch from nature which a great artist makes nearly always has a freshness which he only labors away in the picture he bases on it; and the rough pencil or charcoal lines of the former frequently reveal more of his feeling toward his subject than all his anxious manipulations of the brush. That is why it is so exceedingly worth while to collect and catalogue every scrap of drawing that once littered a great painter's studio. His drawings give you his intentions; his paintings do not always give you their fulfillment. It is true that a drawing is incomplete, but therein lies its charm. Possessing a drawing you possess a hope, and hope is better for mortals.—T. P.'s Weekly.

Drug Used to Good Effect.

A correspondent asks in the British Medical Journal is a small hypodermic injection of morphine, not sufficient to cause drowsiness, would do good to a speaker suffering from extreme nervousness. "We have no experience of this treatment, but it is within our knowledge," says the Journal, "that a great actress was enabled to face a trying ordeal of the first night by means of seven drops of laudanum. She learned to rely confidently on this medicine, which never failed of its effect. As the drug was given only on these special occasions she never contracted the opium habit."

Would Be a Reformer.

Miss Kung Tung Pih was one of this year's graduates at Barnard and will return to China to take up educational work in that country. She will establish women's clubs throughout the country, as she thinks the Chinese women will be benefited by the organized study that such clubs will suggest. She wants kindergarten education in the Chinese schools. She thinks Chinese wives would be happier if they knew something more of western ideas of personal freedom.

On Probation.

"Ferdie wants to marry me, father." "Ferdie doesn't know his own mind." "Oh, father, give him a chance." "Well, I'll put him on probation. If he attacks to one brand of cigarettes for the next six months, I'll admit that he is getting stouter."

Literary Bug Chases Cupid.

A Kansas City (Kan.) man was given a divorce recently because his wife is so busy writing love stories for the magazines that he had to prepare his own meals and do most of the housework. When the literary bug enters the parlor Cupid slips out of the kitchen door and climbs over the fence.

FACE AND HEAD AN AWFUL SIGHT

Eruption Broke Out when 2 Weeks Old—Itched So He Could Not Sleep—Hair All Fell Out—Cuticura Cured Him.

"I wish to have you accept this testimonial, as Cuticura did so much for my baby. At the age of two weeks his head began to break out with great sores and by the time he was two months his face and head were an awful sight. I consulted a doctor, who said it was nothing but a light skin disease which the baby would soon get over. But he seemed to get worse so I called another doctor. His opinion seemed to be the same. They both prescribed medicine that did not do a bit of good. A friend advised me to take him to the hospital, which I did. Two doctors there gave me medicine in a liquid form. It did him no good. "Nearly every day I would read a testimonial in regard to Cuticura and my wife thought she would try it to see if it would help the baby. I got a box of Cuticura Ointment and a cake of Cuticura Soap and after using these he was entirely cured. Before Cuticura cured him he could not seem to sleep, as his face and head would itch so. What hair he had all fell out but soon he had a nice head of hair and his face was perfectly clear. It is now nearly five years since he was cured and there has been no sign of the eruption returning. Chas. H. Evans, 31 First St., Somerville, Mass., April 19, 1910." A single set of Cuticura Soap and Ointment is also sufficient to cure, rendering it the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. Sold throughout the world. Putter Drug & Chem. Famous "Pint of Cough Syrup" Recipe

No Better Remedy at any Price. Fully Guaranteed.

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and 1/2 pint of warm water and stir for two minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it up with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

The effectiveness of this simple remedy is surprising. It seems to take hold instantly, and will usually stop the most obstinate cough in 24 hours. It tones up the jaded appetite and is just laxative enough to be helpful in a cough, and has a pleasing taste. Also excellent for bronchial trouble, throat tickle, sore lungs and asthma, and an unequalled remedy for whooping cough.

This recipe for making cough remedy with Pinex and Sugar Syrup (or strained honey) is a prime favorite in thousands of homes in the United States and Canada. The Pinex has been imitated, though never successfully. If you try it, use only genuine Pinex, which is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, and is rich in quinine and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this recipe.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., P. O. Wayne, Ind.

Some merchants succeed without advertising at all—perhaps—but if success means to YOU more than a passable showing of profit at the end of the year; means in brief nothing short of DEVELOPING your market to the MAXIMUM limit—then not only is the advertising campaign a necessity, but the advertising must be planned intelligently and in advance.

Just filling space in a newspaper is not an advertising campaign. Just an ad now and then is not an advertising campaign.

An advertising campaign is a thought out plan based upon actual conditions. An advertising campaign is giving publicity to an idea. The Gazette plans advertising campaigns for its patrons. All advertising plans do not succeed—yet it is to the credit of The Gazette that its advertising campaigns thus far have succeeded in MOST every instance.

Don't Ask for Sympathy.
Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has always been characterized by overflowing sympathy for the unfortunate, especially the unfortunate sick; nevertheless writing in Harper's Bazar on sympathy, she takes the point of view that it is a luxury all of us should learn to do without. "We have come to recognize absolutely the limitations of human sympathy, and it is something to have learned where it cannot follow us. After all, very few people in this world," observes Mrs. Phelps keenly, "are tender. Even among women the genuine quality is not common. Let us be content to assume sympathy in our friends. We shall not receive any less of it for believing in it."

Are Flying Contests.
In response to a demand of the times for athletics that lead to high thinking, few sports can take rank with the kite flying. In the open fields the sportsman's every resource is in play while he struggles with the string controlling the big kite teetering at the other end. His thoughts, if he indulges in any, are concerned with immutable laws and lofty affairs of the universe. Kite-flying contests are the excitement of the hour in the eastern states. Not long since 127 boys of Greater New York entered for medals offered by the West Hudson Aero club, and other similar events have been heard from in which both boys and girls exercised ingenuity in kite invention and craft in managing their airships.

Bad Breath
"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can willingly and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles."—Chas. I. Halpern, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

AUTOMATIC MASSEUR

Subject Turns, Handles and Revolving Balls Knead Stomach.

There is no longer any necessity for having an expensive Swedish rough house artist several dollars every time you want a massage. A machine has been invented which, it is claimed, will do the work just as well and cheaper in the long run. This machine is fastened to an upright, so walls need not be moved. A wheel with large leather covered knobs on the ends of its spokes projects a foot or so and this is revolved by turning two handles. The patient, or subject, stands in front of the wheel with his abdomen just touching the wheel which, by the way, can be adjusted to a height to suit the user. He then turns the handles and the wheel revolves, the balls pressing over his stomach and kneading it in a way to stimulate the circulation of the blood and impart healthy action to the liver and other organs. Another use for this device is for the reduction of adipose tissue and the consequent reducing of a too generous waist-line.

KNEADS ORGANS IN CONDITION.

Romeo and Juliet.
"Wherefore art thou, Romeo?" wailed the actress in the balcony scene. "In this present demand for thine plays if thou wert a porch climber and I were a second-story worker, there might be some money in the box office."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by J. C. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and full particulars.

Address J. C. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

BRONCHINE

You Can Be Made Well If You Will Come to the Chiropractors

Every disease known to mankind yields to Chiropractic adjustments. Chiropractic is a science of old truths, the most wonderful aid to mankind in centuries. It's a new science, that analyzes and locates unerringly the physical cause of disease, and provides a means of adjusting or removing this cause more promptly, radically and permanently than any other method known at the present time. These may seem bold statements to make. Yet there is plenty of proof to back them up. If you are sick and suffer, PUDDICOMBE.

ing, if you have tried the medical profession and failed to be cured, come to us. Ninety-eight per cent of the people that come to the Chiropractors are made well, and this notwithstanding the fact that 75 per cent of these same people HAVE BEEN GIVEN UP by the medical profession.

Call for an examination and advice in regard to your troubles. Even though slight, they may be future danger signals of serious ailments. EXAMINATIONS COST NOTHING.

Chronic Diseases Successfully Treated.

The doctor has such wonderful success in the treatment of certain diseases that he feels fully warranted in making the following liberal offer.

He will make a thorough examination and tell you just what can be done; what the treatment will cost and about how long it will take to effect a cure.

Dr. Shallenberger wants every person who suffers from a chronic disease—it makes no difference how bad their case is, or how long they have suffered, or who has treated them and pronounced them incurable, to call and consult him. He will make a thorough examination of their case, tell exactly what can be done, whether they are curable or not, how long it will require and all about it. He treats chronic Stomach Trouble, Liver Disease, Constipation, Rheumatism, Bladder Trouble, Diseases of the Kidneys, Chronic Catarrh in all its forms, Heart and Nerve Troubles, Diseases of women a specialty.

Dr. Shallenberger has a system of treatment which he believes is the best known for chronic diseases. He is able to cure many cases that have resisted other treatments—that are considered incurable. He wants it distinctly understood that he does not undertake any case that he thinks is incurable, and will tell the patient candidly when he has made the examination.

He has a special treatment for general weakness of men, which he would like to explain in person. He will examine every case that calls on him on the above date absolutely free of charge.

Address W. E. Shallenberger, M. D., 3388 Lake Ave., Chicago, Ill. Reference: Drexel State Bank.
